CRIMINAL SESSIONS BEFORE THE HON. CHIRF JUSTICE. SIR JOHN SMALE.

RIDNAPPING. Tam Awai and Tang Ass were charged, the first with bringing two boys into the colony for the purpose of sale, and both the first and second a woman) with detaining thom. The Attorney-General (Hou. E. L. O'Malley instructed by the Acting Crown Solicitor (Mr. A. B. Johnson), prosecuted The jurous were Messrs. C. A. Tomes, L. L. Bush, R. Fraser Smith, J. Lawrenco, E. F. de Rozario, A. S. Garfit, and A. T. de J. Soares. The two boys lived in Canton. One of them, while begging in the street, was accosted by the male prisoner, who told him that if he would come with him to Hongkour he would find him employment in his (prisoner's) brother's shop. On this representation the boy came. presentations, and on their arrival here they were taken to the house of the second soner. After they had been here a short time fined $7 each, in default fourteen days' imprisonthey asked why they were not given the employment which had been promised them. The first prisoner said it would be better for them to be rich men's sons than to work, and the Attorney. General put it that this disclosed an intention sell them, and the boys in fact overheard conversation as to their price. The boys did not agree to be sold, and the case having come to Mr. Montagu Clength Wilkinson, of Mosses, the knowledge of the police, the prisoners were

His Lordship, in summing up, referred to the fact that the boys were crying in Hongkong because they did not know when they would get home again, and said that even such boys as these were, without friends, attached themselves to some place which they called home. It was well-enough for well-to-do-do people to say was benefiting them against their will, but the law said even children of this kind should not be benefited against their will. The boys were willing to work, and were brought here on the representation that they would get work. He knew nothing that distinguished the character of a child who was sold from that of a slave.

The jury unanimously found the first prisoner guilty on both counts charging him with bringing the boys into the colony, and by a majority of five to two on the counts charging detention The second prisoner was also found guilty of unlawful detention by a majority of five to two. The first prisoner was septenced to two years' hard labour on the first and second counts, and one year's hard labour on the third and fourth the sentences to be contemporarieous. A short time ago, a Chinese theatrical troupe improvised a burlesque, two of the characters being intended to represent foreigners. One of the actors was dressed up and introduced as the taipan of a prominent firm on the Band, and the other as a sergeant of the Municipal Police. The audience enjoyed the joke immensely if the broad grins on their faces could be taken as an index of their feelings. A report is current here that about 60 Censors at Peking have written various memorials to the Throne against Li Hung-chang, the Viceroy of Chibli, saying that he has spent year after year his attention was drawn to the house in question | millions of Taels for buying war materials, and and he was induced to go upstairs and gamble, building war vessels, and besides that, buying vessels and materials in Europe; and that on his advice the Government has incurred all this excease. They therefore want to know for what purpose has the Government done so? It mite clear that the Government has done so for the purpose of being prepared for war. Now the necessity for war has arisen, and as China must

GAMBLING IN SHANGHAI

The professional gamblers, says the Sin Pag who secretly practise their calling in the Foreign Settlements in Shanghai, form a very numerous body, and may be divided into several classes. First, there came the well-dressed and distingnished looking gentlemen, who ride in chairs when they go out, live luxuriously, and have rand houses and beautiful wives. When they play they win or lose thousands of tack at a of the master or officer in charge and not being sitting. If any men of wealth arrive in Shanghai, or any open handed military officers, those gentry will use a thousand tricks to get them to play, and when successful in enticing them to do so, never fall to empty their purses. They er. They had no permission to do so from any littended dupos to a nouse or pressure, and now no board ever much self-control the letter may display, settle the difficulty by negotiation; but when on the P.C. Edwards said he saw the prisoner book when they have nothing on hand they intended dupes to a house of pleasure, and howor later. . When they have nothing on hand, they meet every day in parties of four or five, either in one of their own homes or at a house of bad character, and play at dominoes till night-time.

As soon as a "pigeon" appears, they set to work to swindle him at cards, dice, or dominoes. They think nothing of risking a thousand tacle in single stake, and they invariably begin by losing themselves and letting their viorim win in order to lure him on. Their ranks comprise parties of Canton, Sosehow, Ningpo, and Shanghai man The places were they gamble are generally vacant DOMESTIC SLAVERY IN HONGKONG. rooms in pretended foreign lionge, or very quiet and secluded private houses. Though not armed come owners of the Lao Keechong gambling enabled to do this by the unsparing use of mousy with which they secure perfect intelligence. time the establishment has been less flourishing than formerly. But it has begun to show signs of reviving again lately, which is doubtless due to the unfortunate fact that the offenders were not punished with the full rigour of the law.

There are similar gaming houses at Hongkew, both inside and ontside the Settlement. In the case of these, conoralment is casier and dotoothou more difficult, owing to their being in such out-of-the-way place. Both the Liso heecharge and the Hongkery houses are kept by Canton men, whose boldness and desporation cake them most difficult to arrest. The third are the humbler camblers, who may be found playing in their shirt-sleeves in the Tsingyour Street or near the creek bohind the French Police Station. They either hire a small room, or gamble in the open street, running away on the approach of the pelies and recommending on their departure. They have spies and watchers everywhere. They may be caught and cangued but they begin again as soon as they are let out. and the law seems powerless against them. Foreigners are fully aware of the harm done in the Settlements by these three classes of gamblers, and try their very best to put a stop to them, But the skill and cunning of the law-breakers is so great that it is to be feared that foreigners will never be able to root them out thoroughly unless the native officials give their aid. Chinese laws relating to gaming are severe. Keeping a regular gambling-bouse punished with flogging and banishment, and even neighbours who do not give information may be flogged. Money derived from gambling houses is looked upon in the same light as stolen goods. Makers of cards and dice are liable to be heavily punished; and so are those who deal in them, but more lightly. Local authorities and their clerks, who fail to discover or who connive at gambling are fined and punished in various ways. So are the literary chancellors who fail to stop it in the case of officials under their charge. So those who do not apprehend makers of articles used in gambling. Any official who arrests guilty parties, will thereby be excused for any previous neglect with regard to those parties. There are also rewards for those who distinguish themselves in making errests. here given in extenso. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises the Court and Punti pronunciations are given, the scents being sersfully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typography attained, and dispensing with those vast margins and vacant spaces which have heretofore characterized Chinese publications.

Chalmers' Vocabulary contains about 16,000 Chinese characters, and Medhurst's English and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilst this work contains more than 50,000 English words, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese characters. Again, despite all the grammars and other elementary works as yet published, the student of this difficult language absolutely requires examples to display the various applications and equivalents of different words which have one general meaning. Of these examples this work contains more than five times as many as any other Dictionary hitherto pub-

For practical purposes the arrangement of the work is so complete, that a reference to itspages enables a person who understands English to communicate effectively with natives who understand nothing but Chimese. In this respect the work will be found indispensable to all Europeans residing in China, and to the natives themselves it explains subjects fully with which very few indeed of them are perfectly acquainted.
